Next Generation Board Leadership

Boards are likely to face new challenges and risks that may arise from technological complexities, shifting demographics and other factors impacting companies today.

Boards are increasingly held accountable for the performance of their organizations. Banks would be well advised to bring in a younger generation of board members to address emerging areas of board oversight and provide fresh and diverse perspectives into boardroom conversations.

The Next Generation Leadership program, under the KPMG Board Leadership Centre, aims to provide a unique educational experience to develop the next generation of board leaders through a structured course covering practical frameworks as well as simulations to build the required skills, sharpen decision-making and augment the oversight abilities of directors seeking to boost their existing competencies or to be better prepared for their potential board roles.

About the KPMG Board Leadership Centre

The KPMG Board Leadership Center (BLC) champions outstanding governance to help drive long-term corporate value and enhance investor confidence. Through an array of programs and perspectives—including the KPMG Audit Committee Institute, the WomenCorporateDirectors Foundation, and more—the BLC engages with directors and business leaders to help articulate their challenges and promote continuous improvement of public- and private-company governance. Drawing on insight from KPMG professionals and governance experts worldwide, the BLC delivers practical thought leadership—on risk and strategy, talent and technology, globalization and compliance, financial reporting and audit quality, and more—all through a board lens.
