

Event-based outsourcing

Rapid delivery with the right know-how

KPMG in Canada can help you plan, provision, train, and start executing on large event-based transformation projects within 72 hours; enabling you to outsource 1,000+ qualified professionals, achieve high volume throughput, and maintain quality and accuracy to reach your short-term objectives.

The changing business environment defined by the COVID-19 pandemic and its ramifications has increased the need for businesses to adapt quickly and respond to unexpected situations.

Over the last few months, organizations have taken unprecedented steps to respond and survive - from restructuring business processes, to enabling a virtual workforce, to finding new ways to deliver products and services. Additionally, some businesses have been challenged with time-sensitive risks and/or opportunities - involving surges in work volumes - that go beyond the organization's preparedness or capacity to handle them effectively and efficiently.

Our event-based outsourcing offering addresses organizations' needs for short-term qualified professionals to deal with surges in specialized work. We offer rapid deployment of highly skilled staff to increase your capacity when you need it most and provide the know-how and quality delivery you require.

How KPMG can help

We can plan, provision, train, and start executing on large event-based transformation projects within 72 hours across Canada and the U.S., enabling you to outsource 1,000+ qualified professionals to achieve high volume throughput, and maintain accuracy and quality.

Here is how it works:

Step 1: Project setup

Rapid stand up of an efficient operating model, including access to a highly qualified talent pool.

Step 2: IT provisioning and training

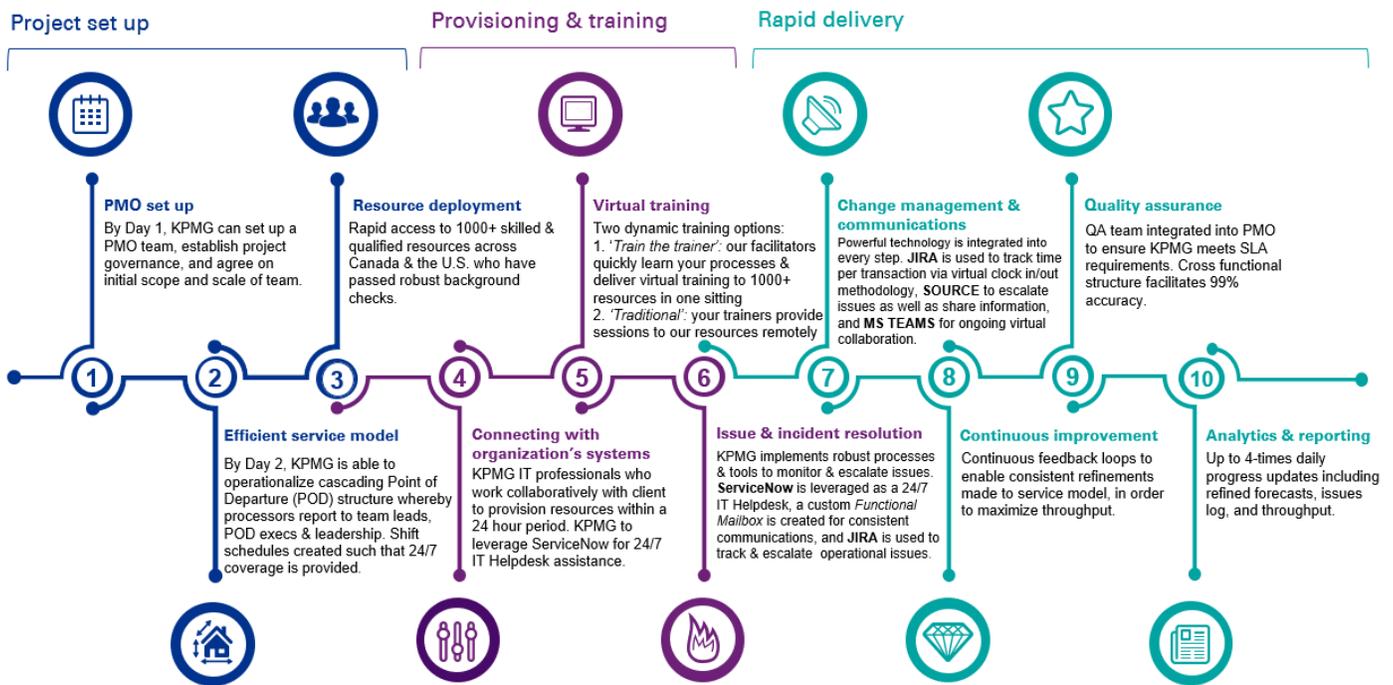

Set up of collaborative remote work environments to quickly train our professionals on your processes and to connect across borders and time zones.

Step 3: Rapid delivery

End-to-end solution delivery, powered by advanced technology tools, rigorous controls, and proactive reporting functionality.

Case study

KPMG in Canada and KPMG in the United States assisted a financial institution with the processing of loans as part of the U.S. Government's Paycheck Protection Program (PPP). The work fell under the CARES Act and was vital to ensure that American small businesses were able to secure loans from the Small Business Administration as they worked through the challenges brought on by COVID-19.

A team of 400+ qualified individuals was assembled within 48 hours to provide 24/7 coverage in processing over 65,000 PPP loans, all while working from home. We used robust collaboration and project management tools to stay on track and connected in order to help the client's small business customers with agility and quality.
