Nye oplysningskrav i IFRS Disclosure Checklist for 2020

Presentation of financial statements
Section 1.1, page 4	Insights 1.2.80.10 – Change in Word-ing	An entity discloses material uncertainties related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on its ability to continue as a going concern. In some cases, management may conclude that there are no material uncertainties that require disclosure in accordance with paragraph 25 of IAS 1. However, reaching that conclusion involved significant judgment (i.e. a ‘close-call’ scenario). In these cases, a question arises about whether any disclosures are required. The IFRS Interpretation Committee discussed this issue and noted that the disclosure requirements in paragraph 122 of IAS 1 apply to the judgements made in concluding that there are no material uncertainties related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the entity’s ability to continue as a going concern.

Transition requirements for Interest Rate Benchmark Reform (Amendments to IFRS 9, IAS 39 and IFRS 7)
Section 2.5, page 60	IFRS 9.6.8.2, 7.2.26(d), IAS 39.102B, 108G	‘Interest rate benchmark reform’ refers to the market-wide reform of an interest rate benchmark, including the replacement of an interest rate benchmark with an alternative benchmark rate such as that resulting from the recommendations set out in the Financial Stability Board’s July 2014 report Reforming Major Interest Rate Benchmarks. An entity applies the amendments retrospectively in relation to hedge accounting. This retrospective application applies only to those hedging relationships that existed at the beginning of the reporting period in which an entity first applies these amendments or were designated thereafter, and to the amount accumulated in the cash flow hedge reserve that existed at the beginning of the reporting period in which an entity first applies these amendments.

In this case, the entity may restate comparatives for prior periods only if it is possible without the use of hindsight Note: This section reflects requirements of IFRS 7 introduced by IFRS 9 and does not refer to the old financial instruments requirements. 		Uncertainty arising from interest rate benchmark reform
Section 2.5, page 70	IFRS 7.24H	For hedging relationships to which an entity applies the exceptions set out in paragraphs 6.8.4 – 6.8.12 of IFRS 9 (or paragraphs 102D – 102N of IAS 39), it discloses:
	IFRS 7.24H(a)	a. the significant interest rate benchmarks to which the entity’s hedging relationships are exposed;
	IFRS 7.24H(b)	b. the extent of the risk exposure it manages that is directly affected by the interest rate benchmark reform;
	IFRS 7.24H(c)	c. how it is managing the process to transition to alternative benchmark rates;
	IFRS 7.24H(d)	d. a description of significant assumptions or judgements that the entity made in applying these paragraphs (for example, assumptions or judgments about when the uncertainty arising from interest rate benchmark reform is no longer present with respect to the timing and the amount of the interest rate benchmark-based cash flows); and
	IFRS 7.24H(e)	e. the nominal amount of the hedging instruments in those hedging relationships.

		Notes on early adoption
	IFRS 16.46A	The amendment, issued in May 2020, provides a practical expedient to allow lessees not to account for rent concessions as lease modifications if they occur as a direct consequence of COVID-19 and meet all of the following conditions.
	IFRS 16.46B	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> — the revised consideration is substantially the same as or less than the original consideration; — the reduction in lease payments relates to payments due on or before 30 June 2021; and — no other substantive changes have been made to the terms of the lease
	IFRS 16.C1A	The amendment is effective for annual periods beginning on or after 1 June 2020. Early adoption is permitted, including in financial statements not authorised for issue at 28 May 2020. No practical expedient is provided for lessors. Lessors are required to continue to assess whether the rent concessions are lease modifications and account for them accordingly.
		Transition
	IFRS 16.C20A	A lessee applies the amendment retrospectively and recognises the cumulative effect of initially applying that amendment in the opening retained earnings (or other component of equity, as appropriate) of the reporting period in which it is first applied.
		Transition disclosures
	IFRS 16.C20B	If a lessee applies the practical expedient, it discloses the information about initial application required by IAS 8.28, except for the information specified in IAS 8.28(f) which is not required.

	IFRS 16.60A	If a lessee applies the practical expedient, it discloses:
	IFRS 16.60A(a)	a. the fact that it has applied the practical expedient to all rent concessions that meet the conditions in IFRS 16.46B or, if not applied to all such rent concessions, information about the nature of the contracts to which it has applied the practical expedient; and
	IFRS 16.60A(a)	b. the amount recognised in profit or loss for the reporting period to reflect changes in lease payments that arise from rent concessions to which the lessee has applied the practical expedient.
