

E-communication System With the Courts

Newsflash

July 2020

Reminder

1 September 2020 - Deadline approaching!

All legal persons should request access to the electronic communication system with the courts ("e-Communication") by 1 September 2020.

* * *

Why this matter?

Legal persons that do not register may suffer negative consequences due to untimely information on the status of court proceedings and / or expiration of deadlines in court proceedings to which they are parties.

What does e-Communication with courts involve?

The e-Communication system includes:

- sending submissions and attachments to the court
- receipt of court documents
- remote insight into court cases

How to access e-Communication?

In order to access the system of electronic communication with the courts, all legal persons must take the following 3 steps:

- I. Enter the legal person's official e-mail address in the Court Register of the competent Commercial Court;
- II. Apply to be registered in the e-Communication system of the Ministry of Justice;
- III. Meet the technical preconditions (i.e. obtain electronic credentials and signature certificate, register within the internal register of the Ministry of Justice).

KPMG Legal would be delighted to assist you with collecting the information and preparing the application for the e-Communication system.
