KPMG Wellness Garden is a gift to Singapore's community and landscape, in tandem with KPMG's global multi-billion-dollar investment for ESG

The creation of the KPMG Wellness Garden, together with KPMG's engagement of the community, comes hand-in-hand with the global firm's ongoing multi-billion-dollar investment program. KPMG plans to spend more than US$1.5 billion over the next three years specifically to focus on the Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) change agenda to make a positive difference. Importantly, this strategy is underpinned by KPMG's recognition of its responsibility to improve its impact on the world and the ESG commitments outlined in KPMG: Our Impact Plan.

The KPMG Wellness Garden gifted to Singapore will benefit different segments of society here, particularly the seniors and people with dementia, among others. Once the Garden is officially launched in 2023, the firm will work with more than 20 community organisations to onboard various beneficiaries to this green development and its activities. Beneficiaries will range from low-income seniors, single parents and families, as well as those with special needs and disabilities. These are the community segments that KPMG has been engaging with in Singapore as corporate volunteers yearly. Minimally, the plan is for beneficiaries to tour the KPMG Wellness Garden and interact with the features and other visitors.

In KPMG's interactions with industry players in the community space in Singapore, the importance of creating and leveraging communal spaces have been highlighted. More than just a venue to relax in, such spaces have been proven to relieve stress and feelings of isolation amid increased digitalisation, while generating conversations among visitors.

KPMG's collective ESG investment will focus on training and expanding KPMG's global workforce, harnessing data, accelerating the development of new technologies, and driving action through partnerships, alliances and advocacy. Beyond benefiting community organisations through corporate social responsibility (CSR) programmes, key to the transformation will be embedding ESG in organisations it works with and creating solutions to drive measurable change for society.

KPMG also recognises that the world's issues will not be solved by any one organisation alone, which is why it is building on its collaboration with external organisations including UNESCO, Enactus and the Global Reporting Initiative.
