

Procurement in the digital age

KPMG Collaborative Category Management

Fragmented processes, increasingly complex supply chains and a wide variety of products: procurement is faced by a broad range of diverse challenges across all industries. KPMG procurement platform Collaborative Category Management enables category management to orchestrate the value chain across organizational and regional boundaries, facilitate collaboration among all stakeholders as well as well as mastering any new challenges they encounter along the way.

The challenge

In a highly globalized and volatile world with increasingly demanding customers, shorter product life cycles, and an overabundance of information, procurement managers are confronted by a growing number of complex questions:

- How to align changing internal customer needs across the globe?
- How to stay on top of supply market innovations?
- How to deal with the increasing data volumes and richness of information?
- How to ensure that both demand strategy and category strategy are synchronized to create added value?
- How to prepare best for the future?
